FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Steadman Bespoke “Raises the Grain”

At Shoreditch Art Wall
17-19 Great Eastern Street, Shoreditch, London EC2

Shoreditch, October 15, 2013. London Art Walls is pleased to announce that Arline Steadman, London-based contemporary interior designer and founder and creator of Steadman Bespoke (www.steadmanbespoke.co.uk) is to host the SECOND STEADMAN BESPOKE PRIVATE VIEW at the Shoreditch Art Wall Courtyard on 17-19 Great Eastern Street on October 30, 2013.

The Private View will include Arline’s trademark, ‘Raising the Grain.’ Her finished style could best be described as ‘Industrial vintage,’ with a soft, warm texture; beautiful products that are rustic yet sleek, a versatile gutsy blend of nuance and urbanity.

Coming from a long line of artisans, Arline’s work has a unique flavour gleaned from her global travels; collecting and logging inspirations. She honours the styles of past renowned bespoke furniture designers, Alan Peters OBE and Edward Barnsley, drawing on their ethos to produce the perfect partnership between patina metal, wood and a variety of other natural and reclaimed materials.

Arline Steadman says, “Each product must retain its natural beauty, but also add exclusive character to its environment.”

Peter Mackeonis of London Art Walls comments, “We are pleased to be able to host and support the art of recycling and know that Arline’s ‘industrial-vintage’ furnishings will be of great interest not only to the contemporary shopper, but also to interior decorators and property developers who are looking for artful quality products.”
